

Career Counselling

Julie Gee can assist you with answering the question of “Where to now?” You may be a school student looking at tertiary study options, or someone with many years experience thinking about changing careers. The fact is that it can be difficult to identify the career options that will bring you satisfaction without some assistance from an independent voice.

Through our Career Counselling Package you will undertake activities to gain insight into yourself. We call this “profiling”:

- Clarifying your interests, abilities and values
- Understanding how your personality and cultural influences can influence your career choices and career satisfaction
- Assessment of your transferable skills, qualifications and experience
- Identifying your achievements

The Package also involves investigating the world of work to identify “opportunities” for you to gain your “best fit”. This includes identifying opportunities for someone with your interests, skills, qualifications and experience may lie, the future prospects for your identified occupation(s) and industry, advice on how to access the “hidden job market” and building your network.

Commitment to Quality Julie Gee is a qualified Career Counsellor (RMIT University) and a Professional Member of the Career Development Association of Australia. She participates in ongoing Professional Development, networks with other Career Practitioners, and undertakes on-going research on educational course options and the future outlook for industries and occupations.

Career Counselling Package

We offer a package of 2 sessions:

Session 1: Initial discussion and assessment of your career goals, transferable skills and interests (may include the use of evaluation tools), along with preliminary goal setting and action planning.

After Session 1 clients undertake homework to further clarify their career goals and research available opportunities for review at Session 2

Session 2: Follow-up discussion and review of opportunities identified, future goals and action planning to achieve career goals

The cost of the Career Counselling Package is $250*.
